

The Wilhelm Schole has had an enduring impact upon my life. The universal message of the golden rule taught there has been central to my personal sense of morality and philosophical outlook. The emphasis on compassion for others and overcoming selfish desires for the good of humankind has led me to have a fulfilling sense of purpose in everything that I do. Furthermore, the encouragement for individual self-expression through the arts and philosophy have given me the courage to follow my own path in life, regardless of external pressures. The school exposed us to an incredible array of arts, languages, and humanities that broadened my appreciation for life and its diversity of beauty. The teachers there were amazing and did such a great job of giving each student individual attention and catering the lessons according to the student's abilities and interests. This individual attention and holistic approach to education gave me the tools to explore the world with a sense of confidence and curiosity for which I am eternally grateful.

Craig Corcoran